Railroads Will Ask for Further Reduction in Wages; Nation-Wide Strike is Considered Probable

ituation brought nearer to crisis today by Federal Labor Board.

PIECE WORK IS RESTORED

When Officials Decline to Affirm or Deny That Men Will Be Called Out at End of October, Conference Is Asked With Railway Executives.

By Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 14.—W. S. Stone, and chief of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, today requested conference with railroad executives to discuss the restoration of piece work on the basis of the six railroad men who have voted strikes. Officials of the 15 unions sent into conference shortly before noon at one hotel while more than 100 railway presidents met at another. The president notified Mr. Stone by telephone that his letter would be considered at their meeting.

When the executives met it was understood they would vote to name the railroad "Labor Board" for further wage reductions, promising to pass all future cuts along to the public in low freight and passenger rates. The railroad crisis was rendered more acute this morning when the labor board handed down a decision providing for the restoration of piece work. The railroad presidents were reluctant while union officials feared an effect on their men more than the effect of whom have already voted strikes rather than accept any further wage reductions or rules which they oppose.

The executives expected to conclude their discussion in one day, taking up the question of wages and rate reductions. The initiative in asking reductions would be taken by the labor board, according to those attending the meeting, rather than by the association.

Varying conditions in different parts of the country would necessitate different wage reductions, they said. Application for wage reductions will be made to the United States Railroad Labor Board, freight and passenger rate reductions to the Interstate Commerce Commission.

None of the railroad executives would deny or confirm reports that October 30 had been tentatively decided upon to begin calling out employees. Progress was temporarily halted in the brotherhood discussion, pending the reply of the executives to the brotherhood request for a conference.

Meanwhile, the Association of American Railroads, which is maintaining a campaign of maintaining maintenance of way, signalmen, clerks, firemen and others and other railroad unions met to discuss the situation. "None would intimate that their action might be. With the removal of the piece work plan by the labor board the shopmen were brought one step nearer a strike."

In August members of the six unions affiliated with the railroad labor board, representing the Association of American Railroads, voted to strike as a result of the July 1 wage reduction.

The call was held up pending an announcement by the board of its ruling. Today's decision permitting the roads to negotiate was accepted as a defeat by the shopmen who have opposed piece work strenuously.

OFFICIAL TRIBUTE IS PAID TO MEMORY OF SENATOR KNOX

AT EPISCOPAL CHURCH

Besides President and Wife and Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge, Endre Pennington, Representative in Congress and Many Others Listen to Service.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14.—Governmental affairs of the nation halted today while its leaders headed by President Harding, attended funeral services for the late Senator Philander C. Knox of Pennsylvania, former secretary of state and attorney general. The services were held at 11 o'clock at St. John's Episcopal church and were conducted by the Rt. Rev. Alfred Hurling, bishop of Washington.

At the church were those prominent in American public life. President and Mrs. Harding, Secretary Christian and the President's military aide, Colonel Sherrell, occupied a front pew before the black silk curtain which bore a large cluster of red roses. Behind the President were Vice-President and Mrs. Coolidge, Speaker Gillette and Mrs. Gillette, Mrs. Knox, the senator's children and other relatives. Members of the Supreme court, headed by Chief Justice Taft, occupied the next pews and behind them were members of the cabinet, including Secretaries Hughes, Mellon, Hoover and Weeks, and Postmaster General Hays.

Almost half of Mr. Knox's associates of the senate were present. The honorary pallbearers were the members of the Senate Foreign Relations committee, headed by Senator Lodge of Massachusetts, Senator Penrose of Pennsylvania and Senator Underwood of Alabama. The House of Representatives was represented by a large committee, and by the entire Pennsylvania delegation led by Representative Butler, its dean. Democratic and Republican members of the Senate and House sat side by side in the small church, while large crowds waited outside.

The services were confined to the simple Episcopal ritual. Before the altar were two immense floral pieces sent by the Senate and House and another from the White House. The only music was a funeral dirge by the organ.

At the conclusion of the services the casket was taken on a special car carrying here at 12:55 for Philadelphia to be taken by motor to Valley Forge, the country home of Senator Knox. Service will be held at 2:30 tomorrow in the Memorial chapel where interment will take place.

CONVERSION OF PENN STATE INTO UNIVERSITY URGED

Project Put Forth by Dr. Thomas, as New President, in Inaugural Address.

COULD LEAD THE NATION

Commonwealth Should Anticipate Attendance of 20,000 Students and Make Provision Therefor, President Declares; Ask $2,000,000 Fund.

By Associated Press.

STATE COLLEGE, Oct. 14.—Expansion of Pennsylvania State college into a state university was urged by Dr. John M. Thomas in his inaugural address at the ceremonies here today, inducing him into office.

After summarizing the history of the institution since June 14, 1855, when it was organized as "The Farmers High School," of Pennsylvania, Dr. Thomas declared the time has come when the State college "should frankly assume the name and function which its present strength and service justify and become in name, as it is now in fact, the Pennsylvania State university."

Only one other institution "of so many students and none of so extensive courses of study" in the United States, he said, still bears the name of college and no radical changes would be required to convert State college into a university.

President Thomas recited the development of free education facilities in the lower schools and secondary institutions of the state and asserted that "in this day there can be no argument that no state educational system is complete without a free state university as its apex and crown." If the name is to extend public education to the higher grades, however, he added it should be in one state university and not more.

"In no state," he said, "which supports two state institutions is there general satisfaction with the result." The commonwealth, President Thomas declared, should anticipate extension to 20,000 students and 16 meet the needs of the state it should have a school of education—a large and worthy school of teacher training. There also should be an increase in accommodations for women students and be urged a home economics laboratory equal to any in the country. He recommended also attention to the school of liberal arts, additions to the library and increased research facilities.

In his advocacy of the conversion of the school into a university he said the institution would have a larger population to serve than the three state universities of Michigan, Minnesota and Wisconsin combined. More than all of the universities of Canada.

The president declared no state in the union can better afford a state university than Pennsylvania could. To build the largest university in the United States and provide for its maintenance accordingly while the taxation rate for purposes of the commonwealth "would still be lower than that of any other state north of the Mason and Dixon line."

Pointing to the state appropriation of $250,000 which he said was allowed out of $2,385,000 asked of the Legislature, Dr. Thomas announced his purpose of endeavoring to get $2,000,000 as an emergency building fund to be used for such buildings as are proper to be built from private funds in a state institution.

Rev. E. M. Conway Brings Sprig from Former Home in Maryland.

A sprig of chestnut in various stages of bloom, from the budding bud to the full bloom, was exhibited at The Courier office yesterday by Rev. E. M. Chestnuts are very scarce on the old home where in days of yore it was possible to gather many bushels. Rev. Conway said, "Right has about the trees and they are about as full of nuts, not much else than the trunk remaining. Rev. Conway was accompanied by his son, William, in their motor car."

Gain in Production Much Less Spectacular Than During Preceding Week

Disposition Is to Make Haste Slowly in View of Existing Conditions.

SHARP OUTLOOK IS KEPT

By Producers on All Phases of Iron and Steel Situation and Note Being Made of the Factors Influencing Trade; No Recession Anticipated.

From The Weekly Courier.

The gain in coke production last week was much less spectacular than that of the previous week. In fact, it was less than might have been expected considering that the firing up of plants and ovens continued, but at a very much reduced rate as compared with the week or 10 days preceding. This was in part due to the newly active plants making rather slow progress in coming to full production and in other part to the exercise of caution by some producers lest eagerness to make percentage records would disturb the somewhat delicate balance of the situation.

Keeping an attentive ear open to all the sounds which changes in the iron and steel trade produce, it was noted that not as many furnace stacks were being blown in as earlier reports indicated would take place, hence there developed some doubt as to an increase in the output of coke within the next fortnight or so. Nothing also that buyers attached considerable and perhaps undue importance to the blowing in of ovens as a step pressing overproduction, which when it actually occurs has a bearish influence on coke prices, the feeling being that such a step a danger should be avoided before it really had time to develop.

Again, too, the railroad situation, both with respect to the trainmen's threats of a tie-up, and the accumulating evidences of an intention on part of the roads to make reductions in freight rates on ore, coke, coal and limestone, is entering very largely into the calculations of the iron and steel men with respect to enlarged operation of plants, the coke trade is realizing that now is a time to make haste slowly in the matter of swelling production.

There has been no stepping over the line and unless some untoward circumstances arise there is not likely to be. There is demand for all coke now being made and prices refuse to decline notwithstanding the softening tendencies resulting from the conditions aforementioned. Ovens have not been and are not being fired before order for their output are in hand. The disposition to take a chance in trading buyers, as has sometimes been done in the earlier years of the industry, is being resisted however much operators desire to see the smoke curling from their ovens.

But if there is a hint in the trade revival, as is being thought, the coke trade has no present indications of a material recession from the present volume of production. The headway gained is believed to be permanent and the fore-runner of a very considerable expansion when general industrial and business conditions become stabilized.

The estimated production of coke during the week ended Saturday, October 8, was 32,500 tons, credited to the two districts in the following proportions: Connellsville, 13,600; an increase of 1,750 tons; Lower Connellsville, 18,900; a decrease of 850 tons, or a net increase of 900 tons, as compared with an increase of 5,540 tons during the preceding week.

By interests the production was: Furnace, 33,200; a loss of 1,200 tons; net change, 32,000; a gain of 1,000 tons, as compared with a merchant gain of 5,540 tons during the week ended October 2.

The Clarissa plant which has not been listed among the available plants of the region for several years, has been overhauled, 10 ovens repaired and placed in operation by the Corning interests. The Clarissa plant and ovens are undergoing repairs and will be fired up shortly. There are 45 ovens at this plant. Browning, 20 ovens, was placed in the active list last week. At the Oliver plant 21 ovens were added to those in blast. The net gain for the week was 70 ovens.

Member of English Social Set Mysteriously Disappears.

LONDON, Oct. 13.—All England is disturbed over the mysterious disappearance of Miss Pamela Beckett, a prominent young society woman, who left her home last Tuesday and has not been found, notwithstanding the efforts of Scotland Yard to locate her. Miss Beckett is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rupert Beckett, a father-in-law of the late Lord Bessborough, a partner in the Leeds banking firm of Beckett & Company and is a director of the Great Northern railway.

Miss Beckett was fond of Antiquing and often has been the partner of the Prince of Wales. When she left home last Tuesday she said she would return within half an hour.

COKE TRADE SUMMARY.

While it was expected, coke production would show a continued gain last week it was not thought possible that it would be as large as that registered during the week ended October 1. That it was but 900 tons bears out the prediction and at the same time shows that influences operated to prevent what might have been a larger increase. These influences appear to have been slowness in bringing recently fired plants to full production and the disposition in the trade to make haste slowly in view of the existing conditions in the iron and steel trade. Fewer furnaces are going into blast than reports indicated and the uncertainty as to a strike of railway trainmen and the possibility of increased freight rates are causing furnaces to hesitate about taking on greater activity.

Production of coke totaled 32,500, a gain of 900 tons and the number of active ovens increased by 70. The rather large increase in production last week had the effect of halting price advances but did not cause a decline. The demand for coke continues to take the output as fast as loaded and no accumulations of stock are being made. Furnace coke of standard grade still commands $2.50, although sales in small quantities have been as low as $2.25 but mainly for use other than in blast furnaces. Foundry is strong at $1.50 to $1.75.

DRUGS EXCITE YOUR KIDNEYS, USE SALTS

Your Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers Drink Lots of Water.

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore, don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean, by flushing them with a mild laxative salt that removes the body's urinous waste and stimulates them to their normal activity. The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 500 grams of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of water—you can't drink too much; also get iron and phosphorus about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys will act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate clogged kidneys; also to neutralize uric acid in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this, also keep up the water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache.—Advertisement.

RED CROSS RESCUED 600,000 FROM DEATH

Spent $1,200,000 for Relief of Famine Sufferers in China Last Year.

To help overcome conditions of acute distress in five famine stricken provinces of Northern China, where millions of persons were affected by an unprecedented shortage of food, the American Red Cross during the last fiscal year spent more than $1,200,000, $1,000,000 of which was contributed directly by National Headquarters and the remainder by various groups interested in the welfare of China.

Through the wide relief operations thus made possible it is estimated that more than 600,000 famine sufferers were saved from starvation.

To the end that similar prompt relief measures by the organization may always be possible the Red Cross is asking continued support by the American people by universal renewal of membership at the Annual Red Cross Roll Call, November 11 to 24.

The method of relief employed by the American Red Cross in its operations in China was particularly effective for in addition to saving hundreds of thousands of lives it provided China with more than 900 miles of permanent roads that are sorely needed to prevent a recurrence of famine. At one time the Red Cross employed 74,000 Chinese workmen, paying them in food for themselves and dependents. This food being brought in from Manchuria and elsewhere.

The experience of the age is behind this player piano

WILLIAM H. BACON

President of The Francis Bacon Piano Company—The third generation of this name actively engaged in upbuilding the piano industry of America.

WHEN you decide to buy a piano, or a player, put your faith in a good name. Fine words, pretty promises and plausible pretensions are as nothing compared to a long record of actual performances.

Bacon instruments have been known for more than one hundred years. They have survived the test of time and proven their worth. All that anybody knows of good piano building is incorporated in the Francis Bacon Player Piano.

Good—because its standard is high—never lowered or "cheapened" to meet a price. Good—because of intensive specialization in the making—the striving always for ways and means of eternal, persistent betterment.

Good—because all that is best in the Francis Bacon Piano is emphasized and accentuated in the Player—in other words, a really good piano is transformed into a really good player without sacrifice of basic worth or merit.

Mind you—a player gets much harder usage than a regular piano—hence it must have strength and stamina plus the requisite artistic quality. It should be a musical creation—not merely a mechanical box!

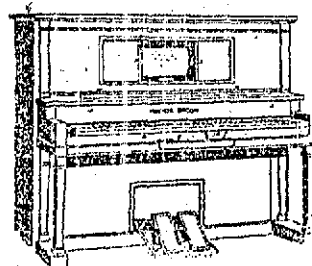

The well-known Standard Player Action—of which more than 250,000 are in use today—is used in the Francis Bacon Player. This is the first player action which can be guaranteed in the manner below.

GUARANTEE

These instruments are guaranteed unreservedly in writing for ten years from date of purchase—we holding ourselves jointly liable with the manufacturers. The purchaser is practically doubly insured.

REMEMBER

We have only a limited number and it is well to come early as every indication points to a period of rapid selling. The response has been very prompt and pleasing.

The panel on the left explains the prices and terms. It is well to state that before we could arrange for this sale, or get the instruments—we had to assure the Bacon Piano Company that the time is ripe for such an event.

They didn't care to ship 100 players unless there was a demand for them. Our investigation here convinced us that conditions are favorable. Money is not so "tight" as it was. People are spending more freely. The stringency has passed.

Banks are releasing currency. There is a demand for real estate. The automobile people are doing business. People are buying new furniture. Theatres are crowded. All of which is encouraging.

We think the people of this city will welcome the opportunity to secure pianos at right prices. Come in tomorrow and examine this fine line of Bacs—uprights, players and baby grands. They are well worth while.

New Coal Control Bill Is Introduced By Senator Kenyon

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—The President would be authorized to take over and operate coal properties in a national fuel emergency under a bill introduced by Senator Kenyon, Republican, Iowa, chairman of the Senate labor committee. Senator Kenyon's bill would be a substitute for the general coal control bill in effect defeated by the Senate last summer and would give the Federal Trade Commission broad powers in supervising the coal industry.

The bill introduced by Senator Kenyon, who has charge of the investigation of disorders in the West Virginia coal region, would penalize profiteering in coal and its operation and distribution profits. The maximum price proposed for operators would be 50 cents a ton and 10 cents for distributors. A graded system of profits was proposed, scaled according to volume handled.

The coal control bill would give the Federal Trade Commission authority to require complete information regarding costs, profits and all other

BUT IT CAN'T! The editor of a national magazine said: "not long ago that if the big city newspaper could get as close to its readers as those of the country, it could have a three million circulation. 'But,' the editor added significantly, 'it can't.' That is why the country newspaper, which has had its doom sealed again and again, continues to go on—because of its intimate, personal appeal to its readers." Abe Martin says that except for a temporary chairman, there is nothing under the sun so hard to stop as a country weekly, and he is right. The country and small town see the value and need of their own little newspaper and so they will not see it die. "Subscribe for your home town paper week" has been set for November 7-12 to remind us forcibly as possible the folks of the home town and the home town folks who are many miles away—of the big service which the home town paper renders.

falls of their business, from operators and distributors. The commission also would be empowered to declare when a national fuel emergency existed and the President's functions then would be called into operation, through an executive proclamation.

During the emergency, to be ended by a Presidential proclamation, the President would be empowered to fix prices, take over and operate mines, transport and sell coal. He also would have power to fix miners' wages, which would be a "reasonable living" standard. The bill also would give the commission authority to fix spent books and other papers of coal operators and dealers, with severe penalties for refusal. Another feature would impose a new federal brokerage tax upon coal brokers selling to other than consumers, a feature designed to prevent pyramiding of prices.

Mrs. Frank Berg of Glenwood was here Sunday with her parents-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Berg.

"Anything further?" stated the president.

"How about uniforms?" This from Captain Scraggs.

"We'll leave that to Glib," suggested McGuffey. "He's been in the Colombian navy and he'll know just what to get us."

"Well, there's another thing that's got to be settled," continued Captain Scraggs. "If I'm to be navigating, I'll need on the flagship of a furrin' fleet, strike me pink if I'll do more cooking in the galley. It's degrading. I move that we engage some enterprising Oriental for that job."

"Carried," said Mr. Glibney. "Any further business?"

Once more Mr. Glibney stood up. "Gentlemen and brothers of the syndicate," he began, "I'm satisfied that the back-bitten, the scrappin', the petty jealousies and general cussedness that characterized our lives on the old Maggie will not be duplicated on the Maggie II. Them vicious days is gone forever. I hope, an' from now on the motto of us three should be:

"All for one and one for all—United we stand, divided we fall."

This earnest little speech, which came straight from the honest McGuffey's heart, brought the tears to the commander's eyes. Under the inspiration of McGuffey's unselfish words the glasses were rolled and all three pledged their friendship anew. As for Captain Scraggs, he was naturally of a cold and selfish disposition, and McGuffey's tone appealed more to his heart than to his head. Had he known what was to happen to him in the days to come and what that simple little motto was to mean in his particular case, it is doubtful if he would have tossed off his liquor as gaily as he did.

"There's one thing more that we mustn't neglect," warned Mr. Glibney before the meeting broke up. "We've got to run this little vessel into some dog-hole where there's a nice beach and smooth water, and change her name. I notice that her old name Reina Maria is scrowed into her bows and across her stern in raised gilt letters, contrary to law and custom. We'll snip 'em off, sandpaper every spot where there's a letter, and replace it after which we'll rig up a stagin' over her bow and stern, and cut her new name, 'Maggie II,' right into her planks. Nobody'll ever suspect her name's been changed. I notice that the official letters and numbers cut into her main beam is P-O-P-0007. I'll change the P to E, and the O to O, and the P to B. A handy man with a wood chisel can do lots of things. He can change those nines to eights, the five to a six, and the seven to a nine. I've seen it done before. Then we'll rig a foretopmast and a spinnaker boom on her, and bend a fisherman's staysail. Nothing like it when you're sailing a little off the wind. Scraggs, you have the papers of the old Maggie, and we all have our licenses regular enough. Dig up the old papers, Scraggs, and I'll doctor 'em up to fit the Maggie II. As for our armament, we'll dismount the guns and stow 'em away in the hold until we get down on the Colombian coast, and while we're lying in Panama, repairing the holes where my shots went through her, and putting new planks in her decks where the old planks has been scored by shrapnel, those paraguets will think we're as peaceful as chipmunks. Better look over your supplies, McGuffey, and see if there's any paint aboard. I'd just as lief give the old girl a different dress before we drop anchor in Panama."

"Glib," said Captain Scraggs, earnestly, "I'll keep 'em and shall drag the man that says you ain't got a great head."

"By the lord," supplemented McGuffey, "you have."

The commodore smiled and tapped his forehead with his forefinger. "Imagination, my lads, imagination," he said, and reached for the last of the punch.

Exactly three weeks from the date of the naval battle which took place off the Coronado Islands, and whereby Mr. Glibney became commodore and managing owner of the erstwhile Mexican coast patrol schooner Reina Maria, that vessel sailed out of the harbor of Panama completely rejuvenated. Not a scar on her shapely lines gave evidence of the sanguinary engagement through which she had passed.

Mr. Glibney had her painted a creamy white with a dark blue waterline. She had had her bottom cleaned and scraped and the copper sheathing overspiled and scraped up. Her sails had been overhauled, inspected, and repaired wherever necessary, and in order to be on the safe side, Mr. Glibney upon inspection duly made by him and seconded by McGuffey (to whom the seconding of the Glibney motions had developed into a habit), purchased an extra suit of new sails. The engines were overhauled by the faithful McGuffey and a large score of Glibney's "lads" in the hold. Captain Scraggs, with his old-time aversion to expense, made a motion (which was seconded by McGuffey before he had taken time to consider its import) providing for the abolition of the office of chief engineer while the Maggie II was under sail, at which time the chief ex-officio was to hold himself under the orders of the commodore and be transferred to the deck department if necessary. Mr. Glibney approved the measure and it went into effect. Only an emergency landing, port, or in case of chase by an enemy, were the engines to be used, and McGuffey was warned to be extremely saving of his distillate.

Mr. Glibney made a splendid job of changing the vessel's name, and as she chugged lazily out of Panama bay and lifted to the long ground-swell of the Pacific, it is doubtful if even her late Mexican commander would have recognized her. She was indeed a beautiful craft, and Commodore Glibney's heart swelled with pride as he stood aft, looking the man at the wheel, and looking her over. It seemed like a sacrifice now, when he reflected how he had trained the son of the old Maggie on her that day off the Coronados, and it seemed to him now even a greater sacrifice to have brazenly planned to enter her as a privateer in the struggles of the republic of Colombia. The past tense is used advisedly, for that project was now utterly off, much to the secret delight of Captain Scraggs, who if the hero of one naval engagement, was not anxious to take part in another. In Panama the freebooters of the Maggie II learned that during Mr. Glibney's absence on his filibustering trip the Colombian revolutionists had risen and struck their blow. After the fashion of a hot-headed and impetuous people, they had entered the contest absolutely untrained. As a result, the war had lasted just two weeks, the leaders had been inconspicuously shot, and the white-washed dove of peace had once more spread her pinions along the borders of the Gold coast.

Commodore Glibney was disgusted beyond measure, and at a special meeting of the syndicate, called in the cabin of the Maggie II, that same evening, it was finally decided that they should embark on an indefinite trading cruise in the South seas, or until such time as it seemed their services must be required to free a downtrodden people from a tyrant's yoke.

Captain Scraggs and McGuffey had never been in the South seas, but they had heard that a fair margin of profit was to be wrung from trade in copra, shell, coconuts, and kindred tropical products. They so expressed themselves. To this suggestion, however, Commodore Glibney waved a deprecating paw.

"Legitimate tradin', boys," he said, "is a nice, sane, healthy business, but the profits is slow. What we want is quick profits, and while it ain't set down in black and white, one of the principal objects of this syndicate is to lead a life of wild adventure. In tradin', there ain't no adventure to speak of. We ought to do a little black-birdin', or raid some of those Jap pearl fisheries off the northern coast of Formosa."

"But we'll be chased by real gun-boats if we do that," objected Captain Scraggs. "Those Jap gunboats shoot to kill. Can't you think of somethin' else, Glib?"

"Well," said Mr. Glibney, "for a starter, I can. Suppose we just head straight for Kandavu Island in the Ellys, and scheme around for a cargo of black coral? It's only worth about fifty dollars a pound. Kandavu lays somewhere in latitude 22 south, longitude 178 west, and when I was there last it was fair roakin' with cannibal savages. But, there's tons of black coral there, and nobody's ever been able to sneak in and get away with it. Every time a boat used to land at Kandavu, the native warriors would have a white-man stew down on the beach, and it's not so that skippers give the island a wide berth."

"Gib, my dear boy," chattered Captain Scraggs, "I'm a man of peace and I—"

"Scraggs, old stick-in-the-mud," said Mr. Glibney, laying an affectionate hand on the skipper's shoulder, "you're nothin' of the sort. You're a fightin' 'arantula, and nobody knows it better'n Adelbert P. Glibney. I've seen you in action, Scraggs. Remember that it's all right for you to say you're a man of peace and advice me and McGuffey to keep out of the track of trouble, but we know that away down low you're goin' around lookin' for blood, and that once you're up agin the enemy, you never bat an eyelash. Huh, McGuffey?"

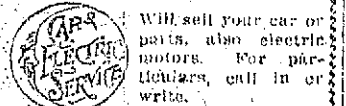

McGuffey nodded; whereupon, Captain Scraggs, making but a poor effort to conceal the pleasure which Mr. Glibney's rude compliment afforded him, turned to the wall, gaped seaward, and started to walk away to attend to some drilling detail connected with the boat drill.

"All right, Glib, my lad," he said, affecting to resign himself to the inevitable, "have it your own way. You're a commodore and I'm only a plain captain, but I'll follow wherever you lead. I'll go as far as the next mint and we'll grow that black coral if we have to slaughter every man, woman and child on the island. Only, when we're killin' in it, don't you up and say I never warned you, because I did. How'd you propose intimidatin' the natives, Glib?"

COUNCIL TO ACT NEXT THURSDAY ON REVISION OF LINE

Reducing Area of South Connellsville Meets With General Favor.

OUTSKIRTS BIG EXPENSE

New Pastor of Evangelical Church and Wife Given Noddy Welcome by Members of Church and Students; Football Team Seeks Playing Dates.

Special to The Courier.

SOUTH CONNELLSVILLE, Oct. 14.—The South Connellsville council will meet next Thursday evening at 8 o'clock to settle the question of clipping off 450 acres of land from the borough and allowing it to revert to the township. This question was brought up at the last meeting of the council and a petition which was signed by several hundred people living in the region of Reidsville was read, and all the members of council signed their names to it to show their approval. Council feels that it will be a good thing for the borough of South Connellsville, as the outlying area is only a big expense and the borough gets practically nothing in return. It is claimed that the recently council spent $250 in repairing a bridge at Reidsville and the road is used very little, occasionally a farmer coming to the city with his produce. The road to Casper's is another expense.

At the meeting next Thursday council will take some definite action in an effort to return the average to the township as soon as possible.

Minister and Wife Welcomed.

Rev. and Mrs. C. E. Miller arrived Tuesday evening. They will start housekeeping at the parsonage of the Evangelical church. A delegation of serenaders awaited them but they failed to come at the expected time and this part of the reception was put off until Wednesday night. Their high school friends joined in the serenade.

Team After Games.

The South Connellsville football team is after games with Leersburg and Star Junction. It is claimed the management of the Tornado team would not play the locals at Fayette Field on "account of ruining the field" for the big game.

Student Taken Ill.

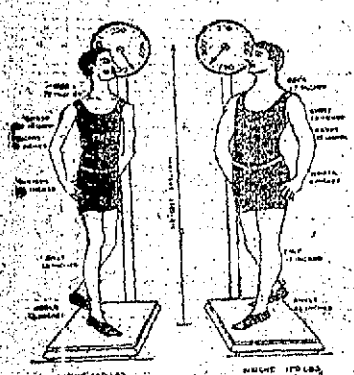

William Crouse became suddenly ill during the sessions at the high school Wednesday afternoon, but he is much improved.

Making Improvements.

J. Edmundo and M. R. Brueck have constructed a cement curb in front of their residences in Pittsburg street in preparation for putting down concrete walks.

Too early for Christmas? Not if you could come behind the scenes with us and see the wonderful things that every train is bringing in.

Dolls that close their dreamy eyes in what the poet calls "azure lidded sleep." Teddy Bears that turn real somersaults. Puppy dogs that strut around as nonchalant and unconcerned as the proudest Abolition of them all. Real electric washers for toy kitchens and a myriad other interesting things.

The markets of the world—Switzerland, France, Italy, Japan, China, Ireland—are all doing their bit that this may be a Christmas like that kiddies and their parents hereabouts will talk about for years to come.
